

PLAN B EXERCISE

Your schedule. Tomorrow (Monday morning), you're going to work or to volunteer downtown. You're supposed to be there by 8:00 a.m.

Forecast. The National Weather Service in Charleston has been reporting the possibility of at least 2.0 inches of rain—higher in some places—between 7:00 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. Also, it's a King Tide day at morning high tide, which is at 8:01 a.m. (A King Tide is an exceptionally high tide occurring when there is a new or full moon, when the moon is closest to the earth, and at other times).

Impacts. At least minor flooding of some roadways is expected. With a high tide, especially a King tide, you also have to watch the time 1-2 hours before and 1-2 hours after.

Impacts to others. Think of family members, friends, staff, or others that you are responsible for in the mornings.

Time to plan. It's Sunday 3:00p.m. The rain is forecast to start in 16 hours. You need to create a Plan B for tomorrow.

What is your Plan B? Take 5 minutes to write down what your individual Plan B will be.

Plan to share as you are willing. Whoever is willing to share, I'll ask you for a couple of bullet points from your Plan B.

Based on this scenario, my Plan B is:
